

Find permanent solution for water scarcity, Prof David Jenkins tells government

MYSURU

A two-day international seminar on 'Water and health maintenance,' organised by Science and Technological Research Board of Government of India and Karnataka State Pollution Control Board, was inaugurated at the JSS University, here on Thursday.

Professor David Jenkins of Plymouth University of United Kingdom said that water scarcity and water management are the major problems the developing countries are facing. Telangana is the worst affected state as it does not have too many rivers. He urged the concerned governments to find a permanent solution for water scarcity. Prof TV Ramachandra, Prof S P Manjunath, Uday Kumar and others were present. ANI, BM
